“ Oh Mr. Bob how we liked to argue most of the time but we would joke and laugh at the end of the day.. He was a character of his own stubborn as can be but that was one of the things I loved most about him. I worked with him for almost 4 years before I had to leave due to my dads health issues. Him and his wife Karen are the most beautiful people I have met. He will never be forgotten. RIP old man! Karen, I love you and my condolences go out to you.

“ Bob, Bob, Bob :- ) What can I say except you were truly always a kid at heart. You loved to pick at others and play jokes. Getting to know you over the last 40 years was a challenge, because you were such a private man with such big ideas. But the man I came to know loved to laugh, loved the Lord, loved peanut brittle, auctions, and collecting anything from teapots in your front yard, to clocks and belt buckles, and any thing that was shiny or made noise. During the last time I saw you, you were able to communicate with your eyes, a smile, a frown , or a grunt. My last interaction with you that got you to laugh was when I told you if you don't take your medication I was going to bring all of the clocks (hundreds and hundreds of them) into your room and set all of the alarms to go off at the same time. You looked up at me and smiled, and grunted a long...NOOOO!!! You made me laugh, and you took your meds! Even in the end you liked to joke. You were the closest thing I ever had to a dad! I love you and will miss you, but I know that you are finally at peace, and with all who went before you! Give Grandma & Mike a hug for me. Thanks for being you!!

“ Bob was kind hearted but had a gruff exterior. I can honestly say he lived his life to the fullest and became a true man of God. He thought outside of the box where most of us think inside the box. He pushed himself to continually grow and pushed others to do the same. My fondest memory of Bob is that he felt I needed to experience the world so he made it his goal to broaden my horizon. Because of this man I have experienced life from the city to going to other states and countries and been on every type of transportation there is whether I wanted to or not. I have to admit it has been quite an adventure. I am truly going to miss this man that was more than my boss because he reached out and became part of my family. My sincere condolences to the family!

Bob was certainly someone whom if you met him you'd never forget him. At least thats how i feel . He scared me out of my shoes at times but after getting to know him he was the kindest most gentlest person i am glad to have called him boss, friend and family. He will be missed. He encouraged me always to do better and never let people treat me like a doormat. You lived being a Man of God and now you'll be in his presence. My sincere condolences go to his family.
